

Jeanne Jones

Jones is Exelon's chief financial officer for Exelon. Exelon is a Fortune 250 company and the nation's largest energy delivery company, serving more than 10.6 million customers through six fully regulated transmission and distribution utilities. Jones is responsible for overseeing the execution of all financial activities including the capital investment process, financial reporting, planning, tax, insurance, credit management, investor relations, investments and corporate mergers and acquisitions. She serves on the Exelon Executive Committee, which sets strategy and direction for the company.

Professional History

Previously, Jones served as senior vice president, corporate finance for Exelon, where she was the key interface between Exelon and the financial community, including investors and rating agencies, and was responsible for communicating the company's financial, strategic, operation and regulatory goals and results.

Prior to her role at Exelon, Jones served as chief financial officer for ComEd, where she was responsible for all ComEd finance activities, including financial reporting and analysis, budgeting, business planning, financings, and risk management. A unit of Chicago-based Exelon, ComEd delivers electricity to more than 4 million residential and business customers across northern Illinois, or 70 percent of the state's population.

Before joining ComEd, Jones served as vice president of finance for Exelon Nuclear, a unit of Exelon's power generation company. In that role, she led a team responsible for the financial, planning, and analysis for all of the company's nuclear operations, including developing and reporting performance against budget and the company's long-range plan, as well as economic analysis related to optimizing the value of Exelon's nuclear fleet. Jones concurrently served as CFO of Constellation Energy Nuclear Group, LLC. Before that, she served as director of finance for Exelon Nuclear.

Prior to her role in Exelon Nuclear, Jones served as assistant treasurer and director of treasury operations and cash management at Exelon. In that role, she oversaw Exelon's cash management, liquidity, pension funding strategies, and corporate capital review and approval processes. She was responsible for adequate liquidity facilities and directed the portfolio capital allocation process. Before that, Jones held a variety of finance roles at Exelon, including manager of treasury operations and chief of staff to the CFO. She joined Exelon in 2007 as a principal analyst for accounting, policy, and research in the controller's department.

Prior to joining Exelon, Jones was a manager in the audit practice of EY's Chicago office.

Industry and Civic Involvement

Jones serves on the Board of Directors for Energy Insurance Mutual Limited (EIM) and is also a member of the Exelon Foundation Board of Directors.

Jones serves on Board of Directors and Audit Committee of the Big Shoulders Fund, supporting Chicago's children in need through access to a quality, values-based education.

Education

Jones earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Notre Dame and MBA from Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.